

THE 2009 JUNIOR SCHOLARS PROGRAM
INFORMATION ON RESIDENCE AND CO-CURRICULAR PROGRAMS

While attending Miami University as a Junior Scholar, you will be residing in an air-conditioned residence hall, located with convenient access to both academic and recreational facilities. All rooms are provided with the basic essentials—beds, desks, chairs, study lamps, dressers, mirrors, cable TV jack, and a telephone. You should provide your own towels, pillows, and bed linens. Every residence hall room now has both an internet jack and Wi-Fi. In fact every room in every building has Wi-Fi!! You may want to bring an alarm clock, stereo, computer, or any other items that will help you feel at home. Most meals will be provided in a dining hall near your residence. Some Scholars bring bicycles for transportation to and from classes, but automobiles are not permitted.

The residence hall environment is designed to complement the academic course work of the Junior Scholars. In addition to regular university classes, each Scholar is expected to attend a limited number of specially planned seminars. A full schedule of social and recreational activities will also be offered. Scholars and staff participate in recreational sports, field trips to nearby places of interest, picnics, and dances. Parents are invited to attend a “Parents Weekend” to share in their Scholar’s experience.

As far as possible, the Junior Scholars will be treated as regular college students, with standard University policies and regulations enforced. Each Scholar is held responsible for his or her behavior and, within limits, given the freedom to exercise good judgment. Reasonable measures are taken by the staff of the hall and the University Police to insure the safety and security of the Junior Scholars.
